MAGISTRATES TOLD TO AID POLICEMEN

State Association Is Advised to Work in Harmony by Judge McAdoo.

DOOLEY MADE PRESIDENT

"Heartly cooperation between the Mayor, the Police Commissioner, the District Attorney and the Magistrates can alone bring about the most efficient enforcement of the criminal laws," Chief City Magistrate McAdoo told the members of the New York State Association of Magistrates, who yesterday attended the final session at the Hotel Astor of their seventh annual conference.

Conditions in the magistrature's courts of this city are vastly better than they were when he was a Police Commissioner, said the speaker. The antagonistic attitude of the Magistrature toward the police, which has been an incentive to the increase of crime, is rapidly disappearing. Cooperation between Magistrates and police has nearly put an end to the flippant and unjust criticism of the police from the bench.

"Not until the legislative and executive forces of the city's government are combined," said Magistrate McAdoo, "can the best possible conditions as to law order and honest administration be expected. When I was Police Commissioner the relationship between the Magistrature and police was strained and unfriendly. If not openly antagonistic. Such rapid advance has been made since then that the present Police Commissioner is often asked to confer with the Magistrates. Hasty and ill timed rebukes of individual policemen from the bench are happily a thing of the past, and the child Magistrates and police realize that they are equally officers of the law, acting for the best interests of the community that employs them. This is the condition that prevails in all other great cities of the world, and to which New York for many years has been a painful exception."

"Probation for Juveniles. When is it applicable and when not?" was the subject of an address delivered during the afternoon by Joseph H. Beall, City Judge of Yorkers. Judge Beall's address was followed by a general discussion of this question opened by Justice Robert J. Wilkin of the children's court of this city. The consensus of opinion among the Magistrates seemed to be in favor of putting juvenile delinquents on probation rather than sending them to a reform institution.

Following the discussion of this problem reports of the activities of various committees were read. Of these the most interesting was the report of the committee on the drug evil, of which Justice Cornelius P. Collins was chairman, and that of the committee on training schools for girls, of which Robert J. Wilkin was secretary. Both of these committees showed that there is a crying need for the establishment of institutions to which drug users may be committed for a long enough time to effect a permanent cure of their habit and that the same condition exists in regard to refugees for unfortunate women.

Resolutions were adopted at the conference recommending a thorough investigation of the merits of probation, the passage of legislation to engage salaried probation officials and the formation of a committee whose work will be the pushing of bills in the State Senate to provide for the establishment of institutions for drug users and delinquent girls. George C. Appell, City Judge of Mount Vernon; John Anderson Leach of Queens county and Charles H. Chappell, Justice of Goshen, N. Y., were chosen as the members of this executive committee. At the close of the meeting the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Edward J. Dooley, a Brooklyn Magistrate; vice-president, Judge Thomas H. Noonan of Buffalo, and secretary-treasurer, Charles C. Chappell of Goshen. The last named was re-elected.

3 KILLED ON OIL TANKER.

Fumes in Hold Injure Three Other Men.

Three men were killed and three others seriously injured in an accident on the tank steamer John D. Rockefeller while the vessel was loaded with oil at Tampa, according to a brief cable received at the offices of the Standard Oil Company. Officials believe that while Oil Inspector Faxon was examining a tank before the oil was pumped in he fell a victim to fumes. In attempting to rescue him Second Officer Hamilton and O. M. Keon lost their lives. It is thought, and the others also were affected by the gas. Mr. Hamilton leaves a family in Brooklyn.

McLAUGHLIN, DEMANDING $70,000, GET NO INSURANCE

Jurors Decide Claim Made by Wife of Ex-Police Inspector Was Excessive—Experts Cut Big Bill for Damage to Art, Said to Be Valued at $250,000.

After deliberating an hour and ten minutes a jury in the United States District Court, Judge Hough presiding, decided yesterday that Mrs. Mary A. McLaughlin, wife of William W. McLaughlin, ex-police inspector, was not entitled to any part of the $70,000 she asked in her suit against the National Fire Insurance Company of Hartford.

Mrs. McLaughlin based her claim on the damage done by a fire that broke out in the McLaughlin home at 60 East Eighty-third street on the morning of February 23, 1915.

The plaintiffs contended that $34,850 worth of damage had been done to Inspector McLaughlin's valuable collection of pictures and $25,000 worth to gowns, dresses and other valuables. Firemen testified that it had taken them just five minutes to stamp out the fire entirely and that they had the hose turned on only one minute.

Discrepancies in Estimates. There were notable discrepancies between the estimates made by the experts for the McLaughlins and those for the fire insurance company. The defendant company's experts asserted that the damage done to the pictures was only $250. Only one dozen of the eighty-one paintings cited by the plaintiff, it was contended, were actually damaged. An additional $250, the experts declared, would have been sufficient to burn up the other paintings whether they were injured or not.

In its answer, the company stated that the plaintiff had "willfully, maliciously and fraudulently" overstated the amount of damage done and that in consequence the company was not obliged under the policy to pay a cent to Mrs. McLaughlin. Experts for the company declared that the damage done altogether could not have been more than $7500.

Insurance to Finance A Columbia Reunion

Ten Graduates Take Out Policies, With Class of 1915 as Beneficiary.

Ten graduates of Columbia College in the class of 1915 have had ten year endowment insurance policies taken out on their lives, by the class, with the class as beneficiary in each case, in a plan for financing the class's decennial reunion in 1925. The premiums will be paid from the class treasury as they fall due and each member will contribute every year enough to bear the cost. It has been the custom at Columbia for the last twenty-five years or more for the decennial class to have a reunion and present a gift to the university. Tradition decrees that the social affairs of commencement day are to be in the hands of the class holding the reunion, and the expenses for the gift and the reunion reached such enormous totals in some years that the individual members were seriously embarrassed.

The plan was first devised last spring in a general way, but it was not fully worked out until a short time ago by W. W. Dwyer, president; S. G. Stone, H. L. Roberts, Frank G. Dunham, S. M. Higur and Lester C. Danielson, the class officers. These men are the officers of the decennial reunion committee, named fully eight years before other classes usually begin to think about their decennial.

In his charge to the jury Judge Hough said: "If you find that there was false or fraudulent overvaluation of the articles or the loss sustained, or both, you need consider no further."

Another contention of the defendant company was that Mrs. McLaughlin declined to appear and be examined subsequent to the filing of her proof of loss. Physicians, however, testified that the plaintiff's health made it impossible for her to undergo the strain of the examination. Mr. McLaughlin acted for her in the suit under a power of attorney. His sons, Thomas and Edward F. McLaughlin, testified for him.

Paintings Valued at $40. Included in the $25,000 worth of clothing said by the plaintiff to have been damaged were a pair of pink silk pajamas worth $40, a pink kimono valued at $125 and dresses valued at from $30 to $500 each. The insurance company's experts held that the entire damage to the clothing could not have exceeded $5500.

Ex-Inspector McLaughlin, in his testimony, told how he bought real estate and collected valuable paintings while working his way up to chief inspector on the police force. The result of his art investments was the $250,000 collection of rare pictures and etchings which hung in the McLaughlin home at the time of the fire.

The inventory of the pictures destroyed included two canvases by Sir Joshua Reynolds, for which he paid $2,200; a Turner, valued at $1,250; two Troyons, worth $1,500 each; two Duges, for one of which he paid $200, and for the other $1,000, and a Corot, valued at $1,500.

"I have been buying pictures for thirty-five years," said the inspector on the stand. "And I bought them all because they pleased me; that is all." The Legislature convenes at Trenton, N. J., on Monday. Editor J. N. Thompson of Carlisle and Nathan represented the defendant company.

William P. Verdon, Republican leader of Hoboken, was sentenced yesterday to serve thirty days in the Hudson county jail and to pay a fine of $250, after being found guilty of contempt of court by Supreme Court Justice Swaine and County Judges Mark A. Sullivan and George G. Tennant in Jersey City.

Verdon at once filed notice of an appeal and was released in $1,000 bail. He said he would fight the conviction to the United States Supreme Court if necessary.

The Last Week of our January Clearance Sales begins to-morrow morning.

Importation of Spring and Summer Cottons

Coincident with Macy's early announcement of new Spring and Summer materials, is the publication, in the leading fashion magazines, of descriptions and illustrations of many which we are showing for advance ideas in the cotton fabrics to be worn during the coming season. They are from the famous Rodier, whose reputation as a producer of exquisite creations is well-known.

Many of the novelties are materials with the characteristics of voile; in some cases the entire body of the material is voile, but voile in a guise which we have not heretofore seen. Sheer, gauzy backgrounds with delicate traceries of flowers or lace-like stripes, or stripes of a lovely lustrous chenille.

These are all found in abundance in our department for wash materials and are representative of Macy's foresight in keeping pace with the demands of Dame Fashion.
